DIRECTOR OF HILLCREST

MINE DIES IN CALGARY

CALGARY, Sept. 11.—(CP)—One of Calgary's pioneer business men, Albert Cushman Johnson, 73, died at his home here Wednesday. He had been in business in this district since 1907.

Mr. Johnson was born in William, Minnesota, in 1847, and was educated there. As a young man he became a business dealer, and later was elected first vice-president and director of the First National Bank at Wilmar.

Since 1915 he had been president and manager of Johnson Investments, Ltd., and of the Colonial Hotel Co., Ltd., since 1922. He was also president of Mohawk Bituminous Mines, Ltd., and a director of Hillcrest Mohawk Mines.

PROVINCE TO ORDER

50-MILE SPEED LIMIT

Early action of a positive nature is to be taken by the provincial government to curb excessive speed on highways, according to information received by officials of the Alberta Motor Association.

It is planned to issue a proclamation fixing 50 miles per hour as the maximum speed for motor cars on highways. During the summer, the public works department announced that the maximum rate was 50 miles per hour but this was more in the nature of a request, which it was hoped would be observed.

Provincial authorities say that high speeds are still being maintained and the number of accidents is on the increase. Consequently, the alternative is to proclaim a new speed rate and instruct police officers to enforce it, according to provincial authorities.

The need of greater safety on the highways is a matter that is receiving the continuous attention of the A. M. A. and it is expected to be discussed at the annual branch meetings to be held later this year.

Winners in the Labor Day draw at Flinke in connection with the queen contest were: 1, K. N. Stewart, 60c; 2, Virginia Garganetti, 42439; combination radio and record player; 3, Mrs. Bert Wilson, 78817, pair blankets; 4, Mrs. Jess. Friday)

POURING CONCRETE AT MUNICIPAL HOSPITAL

Workmen are busy the last two days pouring concrete to form the walls of the ground floor. Wednesday they were pouring concrete on what will be the first floor, the stone underneath being known officially as the "ground floor." Electricians and plumbers are also busy keeping pace with the builders in placing their pipes in position before the concrete is poured around them.

According to the resident engineer work will move along at a much faster pace starting next week as the heavy work of preparing the building for concrete and then pouring the concrete will be practically finished with the exception of pillars for the first and second stories. He expects that the outside boards on the ground floor will be taken off next week thus showing the concrete wall and windows. Since the ground floor will take all the weight of the whole building, the first and second floors will be mostly built of tile with heavy concrete pillars to give strength. Given a real good load Fall it is expected that a roof will very lightly be placed over the entire building, thus allowing for greater comfort during the winter months to continue work in the interior of the building.

REPORTING LABOR TURNOVER

September 10, 1947, has been announced as the deadline for employers submitting their semi-annual report on hirings and separations for the six month period ending August 31, 1947.

Notice of the requirements was sent to all employers from the UIC Head Office at Ottawa on July 16th and the forms are now being mailed. Forms may also be obtained at the National Employment Service.

Employers operating one place of business only, are to complete two copies of the report to be mailed or delivered to the nearest National Employment Service Office and a third copy to be retained for the employer's record.

Employers operating several establishments should, through their Head Office, compile or collect separate reports for all branch establishments and submit in duplicate as a collective report to Head Office, UIC, Ottawa. If each branch establishment of a multiple organization maintains separate payroll records, then the same procedure will be followed as for employers operating one establishment.

The value of data received from these reports is self-evident. It will enable the National Employment Service to determine readily labour turnover by industry throughout Canada and in a breakdown by local office areas. Again, it will aid employment authorities to determine more exactly the extent of seasonal employment in each area. These facts are a definite need if a comprehensive employment picture is to be obtained and will enable the National Employment Service to further improve their service to employers and employees.

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY—

The Compensation :

—By—
LITTLE W. ROBINSON

JOHN MCGRAW was a failure. He knew it. He had gone through life and accomplished nothing, really. Retiring now at 66, he realized he'd not made a mark in the world—not one solitary attainment to which he could point with pride. Nothing.

He was not at all happy as he started on the last lap of his route. "His route". Well, it had been his route for six weeks now, but after today it would belong to another—a younger, fresher man. The thought made him feel a good deal older than he actually was, and for a man who had just gained his independence this was no way to feel.

John was a simple man, and he lived a simple life. Some people would call it dull, and he guessed he agreed with them. Everybody can't do what they'd like to do. For 33 years he had carried the mail in Bluff City, and in that time he'd had almost every route in town. Winter and summer, through rain and snow and sweltering heat, he'd trudged along with his heavy bag, always with a kind word for the housewife, a smile for the children; for John McGraw, the postman, loved his fellow man. And he loved Bluff City too. He was born and raised here, and when the time came he wanted to die and be buried here too. In all these years John McGraw had stood still!

A few more blocks now and he would be through. He pushed the thought out of his mind.

Forty years ago as a struggling young painter he had dreamed of great things; of accomplishing something worth while in life. But those things had never come to pass, and as he grew older the world knocked out the dreams and ambitions of which he had once been so proud. Yes, John McGraw had failed.

At 25 he had married Sara, and Sara wanted security at any price. She was one of those wives who say little and mean much. But she was a good woman—so good, she made everybody else feel uncomfortable. It wasn't often she lost her temper. On the contrary, she seemed to always have it with her.

He had never forgotten that day in his den many years ago. A splotch of red paint had been daubed on an unfinished canvas, and his favorite brush was missing.

"Yes, I did it," Sara said coldly. "The sick of the smell of paint. It stinks me! Don't you ever want to do anything but paint?"

And it had caught him off-balance. He never suspected! He was a selling painter! "Why—no, I don't," he managed to utter.

"I thought not," Sara continued. "Other men work for a living and get some place. And you—you're satisfied with a few measly checks and a two-room apartment?" And she'd turned and walked out of the room.

John stood there and looked at the red splotch on the portrait. He looked at it a long time before he covered it up and put away his materials. He got a job after that and never painted again.

Now he could not paint if he tried. The name of John McGraw would forever mean nothing, for John McGraw had contributed nothing—not even children. And what did he have to show for his years of toil as a public servant? A little white house, an aching back—and Sara!

He shuffled the envelopes in his hand. Tomorrow he would retire on the Government pension he had looked forward to since that first day as a sub. The pension seemed a small thing now. Security? Yes. But it seemed a foolish thing to have worked a lifetime for a pittance only to retire into uselessness or a dule.

Dreamily, he walked down the tree-lined streets he knew so well. He would miss the cheery "Good Mornings" and the bright smiles of the people who waited for him. He liked to see their faces light up when he handed them the letters they expected; he hated to see the sag around their mouths when he had to say, "No, nothing today!"

Good news and bad he brought to his families these 33 years. He knew their joys and sorrows; their successes and failures. And he had seen the children grow up and go into the world to make their fortunes; and he had hoped for their success and happiness. And John McGraw was still delivering the mail!

"Good afternoon, Mrs. Johnson," he said trying to force a smile as he handed her two letters.

Now take the Johnsons, for instance; Dan Johnson was a success. He had his own business; owned a fine home. He had something to be proud of.

John crossed the street to the Morris. A big family they were, three boys and three girls. Mrs. Morrow was a splendid woman. Once during a rainstorm she'd insisted on getting him a hot cup of coffee. He hadn't forgotten that, even if it had been five years ago.

As usual, little Theresa raced out to meet him. "Hi," she said smiling timidly up at him.

He handed her four letters and patted her low head. "How's my little girl?"

"Fine—and thanks," she beamed, then dashed excitedly back into the house calling to her mother.

The Cohens, Simpsons, Balkovics, Smiths and O'Reillys—John knew them all by their first names. He wondered if they knew he existed—except as a machine.

John's shoulders seemed a little more stooped as he walked back to the office for the last time. It was hard giving up the route, but it was harder still realizing he'd never had more than just a route.

He didn't know what to think when he got back to the locker room and found a long envelope tucked under his civilian hat. Slowly he opened it and read the letter inside. He read the last paragraphs three times.

"May we extend our sincere congratulations upon your retirement. Your presence as Guest of Honor at the dinner is desired in order that we may express our appreciation for your years of kind and faithful service to this community."

"And John, come prepared to say a few words—they're giving you a watch."

Your friend,
Dan Johnson, President,
The Homeowners' Association."

Old John carefully folded the letter and replaced it in the envelope. Then he straightened his shoulders and looked up at the ceiling. "Guest of Honor"—Years of kind and faithful service! Suddenly his heart filled with pride, and there were tears in his eyes.

In spite of the red splotch, John McGraw had made his mark!

Architect Says Color Needed For Classrooms

CHICAGO.—It is the color of the schoolroom that puts the student in the mood for studying.

That is what O. H. Breidert, Chicago architect, told the delegates of the 16th annual conference of administrative officers of public and private schools meeting at the University of Chicago.

For example says Breidert, in the boys' athletic dressing room, where the boys lounge and relax, a soft, restful blue should be used. In the room where the "red hot" pep talks take place, the walls should be painted a dashing red color.

A typical elementary classroom should have a landscape-type centre window with two side windows. The entrance to the room should have a glass paneled door with glass side lights. The use of landscape windows brings the outdoors into the classrooms with its light greens, yellows and blues.

Adequate lighting is another important factor. Adequate natural lighting should be obtained by use of large window areas, according to the architect. This may be obtained by long strip windows or vision panels, extending from the sill to a height not to exceed six-and-a-half feet above the floor. Above this height directional glass block extending to the ceiling should be installed.

As for artificial illumination, Mr. Breidert recommended fluorescent low glare fixtures either suspended from or attached to the ceiling.

HEALTH ADVANCES

Time was when life was an almost constant struggle with sickness and disease. Today, with a few of the major illnesses under control and some others beaten into insignificance, health authorities are mobilizing a fight for other things for retention of the ground gained and improvement of individual and national health standards.

In this advance to higher things, the medical profession and the public health field are united to enlist understanding and support of all classes, and ages. They are striving to prevent return of the scourges of earlier generations, as well as to achieve general health improvement.

WOODLAND OR WASTELAND?

The present time heralds the most critical period of the year for forest fires.

By far the greatest number of vacationers choose the late summer and early autumn as the time to visit our woodland areas, and the menace to our forest welfare is greatest at that time. In the earlier part of the summer, some protection is afforded by rains and green growth, but in the dry season that follows, fires are most likely to reach serious proportions.

Since the human element is responsible for perhaps 90 percent of our forest fire losses, there cannot be too many reminders of the necessity of taking care. The consciousness of our individual responsibility must be in the mind of every man, woman and child who enters a wooded area. Forest fires do not graze their fury by the station, sex or age of the person whose carelessness set them going.

The utter devastation left in the wake of a fire presents an appalling sight. Yet the full extent of our loss can only be appreciated when we begin to reckon the ruin in terms of the dollars and cents loss of one of our most important industrial raw materials.

Canada's timber creates more jobs and attracts a larger investment than any other natural resource except agriculture. Yet, in each year of the last decade, we lost by fire 2,500,000 acres of perfectly good forest. Our record is 19 times worse proportionately than that of Sweden, two-thirds of which is a harvest field of timber areas.

An article in a previous issue dealt with the problem of these "million dollar bonfires". In addition to stressing the part each and every citizen can play in reducing our annual losses, it drives home the importance of the subject by some interesting statistics on the uses of forest products as industrial raw materials.

THE SEAGRAM GOLD CUP ON WAY TO SOUTH AFRICA

The Seagram Gold Cup, the emblem of top Canadian golfing honors which has spent most of its life in the United States, sets out this month on the longest journey in its history—a sea voyage to South Africa.

Bobby Locke, South African amateur, won the Canadian Open Golf Championship at Toronto's Scarborough Course in July and thereby gained possession of the Seagram Cup for one year—the first time in the eleven year history of the trophy that it has not had to be shipped to a United States Club following the tournament.

The Gold Cup will make the journey to South Africa aboard the freighter Gratia Park, now loading at Montreal. It is expected to reach South Africa in October, about the same time as Locke himself returns to his native club after turning in the best scores of Canada and the United States.

In South Africa the Gold Cup, first presented to Locke at Scarborough by Providence Seagram, is expected to be presented again by E. D. McEgler, Canadian High Commissioner to South Africa. About eight months after that, it will have to start back to Canada to be here in time for next year's Canadian Open at Vancouver.

HOLD SPOTLIGHT

Unless you are a genius or a hermit, National Health officials remind you, you can't have everything your own way. Growing children need to be taught, they aren't the only "pebbles on the beach" and can't expect to hold life's spotlight all the time. The self-centred child will grow up moody and lonely. So, health authorities endorse organized sports, as excellent schooling to develop traits of co-operation and team-play, essential to success in life.

Teach The Children The Meaning Of The Word DANGER

Too often a young life is snuffed out by drowning; a child is fatally wounded by firearms; a fire set by little hands playing with matches takes life and property. It is most difficult to remove the causes of accidents, but by intelligent instruction children can be taught that "Danger" is a poor playmate.

Farm Mechanization

MACHINERY HAS PLAYED AN increasingly important part in industry since it was first discovered that by using machines man's work could be considerably lightened, and the time required for accomplishing many tasks could be reduced. Machinery is essential to modern agriculture as it is to all industry, and constant work has been done in improving farm machinery and in inventing new types of machines which will increase the efficiency of farm work and cut down on the amount of manual labor which the farmer must do. In Canada, as well as in Britain, acute labor shortages in recent years have increased the interest of farmers in mechanizing their farms.

Farm Owners Have Problem

In this connection, however, owners of small farms, of which there are many, are faced with the problem of having to buy a number of high priced machines, each with a specific function, with the result that much valuable equipment may lie idle for a good part of the year. The need for farm machines with multiple uses has long been of interest to many farmers, and this subject was discussed by agricultural experts when a demonstration of the latest types of farm machinery was held recently at Macdonald College, in the province of Quebec. There it was agreed that if Canadian food production is to be kept at a high level, wider use of machinery will be necessary to offset shortages of labor.

Interest In New Machines

Agricultural engineers at this gathering viewed new types of machines designed to do diversified farm work and to meet the needs of the small farms. No comment was given out on the working of these machines, but it is possible that more extensive means of mechanizing his farm may soon be at the disposal of the average farmer who cannot afford a large outlay of money for equipment which will not be in constant use. Increased mechanization in any industry has always resulted in progress, and it is to be hoped that Canadian farmers may benefit considerably in the near future by more and more efficient tools with which to carry on their important work.

Prospective Drivers Require Rigid Test

Authorities admit that a prospective driver should be given a test of not less than an hour and a half's duration. They admit that the driver should be taken on the highway and tested for ability to estimate the speed of other automobiles (a vital factor in safe passing), ability to judge distances and ability to so coordinate his brain and body that his response to crisis will invariably be correct.

FOR AUSTRALIA—Sheriff Malcolm McGregor, Polled Hereford Breeder, Brandon, Man., was recently successful in selling "Rupert Eugene" (181426), to Captain Grant, member of the Australian delegation which is touring the world for stud stock for Australia. On the arrival in Australia "Rupert Eugene" was acclaimed to be one of the very best bulls ever imported in Australia. The above picture was taken at the stockyards at Brandon just prior to loading. Lieut.-Colonel S. C. McLennan, manager of the Manitoba provincial exhibition is shown holding this valuable animal.

FUNNY And OTHERWISE

And how do you find married life, Jock? Sandy asked him on return from his honeymoon. "Oh, marriage is a wonderful thing, an' all," was the reply. "I'm wearing a pair of shoes someone tied to my wedding car."

"I see you have been fishing. Catch anything?" "Yes, two." "Good, what were they?" "The 130 there, and the 516 back."

A man named Joe Hogbriate appeared in court to have his name legally changed. The judge, nodding understandingly, and asked, "What name do you want to take?" "Frank Hogbriate. I'm sick and tired of hearing people say, 'Hi, Joe, whaddya know?'"

"I don't believe you know the meaning of the word 'courtship,'" said the designing young woman. "Don't I?" replied the wary young man. "Courtship means running after a woman till she catches you!"

"I can't understand how you manage to keep so calm whatever happens," said Robinson. "Oh, it's just a matter of training," explained Thompson. "You see, I've a wife, five children, two dogs, and a cigarette lighter!"

"I haven't seen you at church lately, William," said the vicar. "What's the matter?" "My daughter's learning to play the harp," replied William. "But what's that got to do with it?"

"Well, I'm not so keen on going to Heaven as I was!"

"All this talk about feminism is utter rot. There isn't a woman alive who wouldn't rather be beautiful than clever."

"Quite true," agreed the woman. "But the reason for that, you see, is because so many men are stupid and so few are blind."

The disgruntled shareholder was venting his wrath on the chairman of the company meeting. "Sir," he said, "I think you're the biggest rascal unhung."

The chairman retained his dignity. "Sir," he said, "you forget yourself!"

Big Sister: "What's the idea of wearing my raincoat?" Little Sister: "Yes, you wouldn't want me to get your new dress wet, would you?"

"I shouldn't keep telling her you're unworthy of her." "No? Why not?" "Let it come to her as a surprise."

Tim: "What was the cause of the collision at that corner today?" Jim: "Two motorists after the same pedestrian."

The proud father was talking about the intelligence of his son. "You know, dear," he told his wife, "I think he must have got his brains from me."

"He certainly must have done," retorted his wife. "I've still got mine."

The weather forecaster hadn't been right in three weeks, so his resignation caused no surprise, but his alibi for resigning did. "I can't stand this town any longer," he said in a public statement. "The climate does not agree with me."

Canada Making Film For United Nations

LAKE SUCCESS, N.Y.—Canada is one of 10 countries to which films have been assigned by the United Nations Film Board for production. Under its policy of internationalizing production of United Nations film, the board gave the Dominion the assignment of producing a motion picture dealing with the surface of the world.

Object of the film is to demonstrate that accurate mapping of the earth's surface is only possible by international co-operation, exchange of information and standardization of geographical and geological concepts.

Vandals Enter Old Tombs In London

LONDON.—Vandals have broken into the tombs of the 760-year-old temple church, the Church of the Knights Templar, in search of jewelry they believed might have been buried with bodies interred hundreds of years ago, the city of London detective bureau reported.

The thieves, whose vandalism was believed to have occurred some time ago but which was discovered only recently, also may have been seeking valuable lead, of which many of the coffins were made. The extent of the looting has not been determined. The medieval church was wrecked in 1940 by German bombs, along with a greater part of the temple—a series of law chambers and a library set in once-beautiful gardens in the heart of the city off Fleet street.

Swedish Invention For Ice-Free Ports

Science News Letter says Russia's endless quest for an ice-free port may have been solved by a Swedish invention.

The invention consists of long lines of perforated pipes laid under the channel to be kept free. As the bubbles rise in streams from the perforations, they pull currents of water upward along with them.

This water, which is above thawing temperature, displaces the thin stratum of cold water immediately under the ice, and melts a clear channel. If used early enough in the winter, it can prevent the initial formation of ice, the inventors claim.

Allied Nations Lack Incentive Says Alexander

NEW YORK—Viscount Alexander, Canada's governor-general, declared that the "great incentive of a single purpose" which gave the Allies their victory in war is lacking now in their march to the peace.

But, he said in an address prepared for delivery before the American Legion convention here, "I do not think we should be unduly alarmed or discouraged at this."

"For after all, history teaches us that on the conclusion of all great wars there are serious differences of opinion on all matters connected with peace and its many intricate problems."

"And if others disagree with us, and if we cannot persuade them to our way of thought, then the next best thing we can do is to settle our affairs with those whose views coincide with our own."

Since he had been in Canada, said Viscount Alexander, he had been "greatly impressed" by the good neighborly relations which existed between the Dominion and its southern neighbor, but he did not think it right to say the two peoples were practically alike.

In fact, it seems "much more important" that they be different because the strength in their relationship lay in the fact they should be complementary to each other and that each gave the other something new.

How Animal Trainer Kept His Act Going

Phil Harris, band leader on the Jack Benny program, met an acquaintance who was an animal trainer, and asked him how he was doing. "I've got a swell act now in the circus," the trainer informed him. "It's a 'Friendship of the Lion and the Lamb' act."

"Sounds good," admitted Harris, "but aren't there quarrels between them?"

"Well, yes," conceded the circus man, "they do have their little quarrels at times. But then we just buy a new lamb."—Magazine Digest.

Say Where Or When Rain Due, By Radar

The clouds look like this on the radar screen. Raindrops the size of the lead in a pencil can be picked up.

This radar antenna will enable weathermen to pick up clouds and chart rainstorms within a few minutes and a few hundred yards, experts say.

Dialing in the weather on his radar is Noel B. Montagnon, weather scientist.

Good Reason Why Appetite Failed

Dwight Morrow used to explain to his friends that he was not absent minded—only preoccupied. Nevertheless, one day as he hastened down the street he met a friend and accepted his invitation to lunch.

Morrow suggested that they eat at his favorite restaurant, which was near by. As they ordered, he remarked: "I just want something light, I'm not a bit hungry."

"Excuse me, sir," broke in the waiter, "but you just ate here a few minutes ago!"

Health LEAGUE OF CANADA presents TOPICS OF VITAL INTEREST

VOLUNTARY SOCIETIES

One of the best ways of combating the drift of the times towards totalitarianism is to encourage the formation and activity of voluntary associations which can influence governments by influencing public opinion. There are many excellent objects in our modern life which cannot be obtained without some measure of government action but which it would be most undesirable to leave entirely to government action.

Perhaps our most outstanding example of this sort of thing is the Health League of Canada, a body of ordinary citizens, unfettered by any ties with the professional organizations or with governments. This body is able to exert an influence upon public opinion which no government could possibly equal, and through that influence on public opinion it has in recent years effected great improvements both in government policies and in the attitude of the Canadian public towards them.

It is interesting to find that the Health League—which is an entirely Canadian product and was not inspired by any model elsewhere—is beginning to attract the attention of health experts in many other democratic countries. There have been numerous applications for information and guidance for the setting up of similar bodies elsewhere. Twenty years ago one would hardly have predicted that Canada would soon be giving the world a lead in so important a matter; but the League has had the advantage of an immense amount of devotion and energy on the part of its workers, and a generous measure of support from a large sympathetic public. Canadians may not be as health-conscious as we could wish, but they are a great deal more so than most of even the very progressive nations of the world.

CAN BE SEVERE

The possible severity of hiccups is shown by a recent case in which an attack caused the death of a man in four days and 12 hours. In another case, a woman has had three attacks since 1941, each of which, after a duration of six weeks had to be stopped by a phrenic nerve operation in order to save her life.

WORK DID IT—"Work and more work," said Robert Reynolds of Brockville when asked for his secret of long life upon celebrating his 100th birthday Aug. 20. A pipe and a shady nook in the garden of his home on the town's outskirts keep him happy. Mr. Reynolds, retired some 30 years ago, went to western Canada as a youth to work on the C.P.R.
